About

Peertube offers the possibility for any community start their own open source and Decentralized Youtube equivalent. To see which communities already exist one could check out the incomplete but official Peertube Instances Page. At this moment their are already thousands of Instances listed but there are lots more out there that are not listed. These instances are already sweet on their own, but where their real power lives is when they can connect to each other. For this the ActivityPub federation protocol is used, which basically allows users from one instance to comment and receive videos from another instance. However, the moderators of these instances decide which instances they want to be connected to and which ones not.

Even though Deternet is decentralized and nobody decides what a Hub can and can't do, we do recommend to create a Peertube network with only Deternet related content. That means a network of Peertube Hubs that all connect to each other without being connected to instances that are not Deternet Hubs. This might sound limited but at the same time allows us to create a network of curated content that is of high quality and not flooded by content that is not related to the goal of the project.

PeerTube Hub Content Ideas

1. Live Meetings: Peertube offers the possibility to stream live video with comments and questions. Hence, one can have an in person meeting with the board or with members and also allow others to attend that cannot be physically present.
2. Projects: Since, hubs have their own local projects they can post videos on progress, things they encountered or tutorials on how to handle or construct infrastructure in specific buildings or situations.
3. Interviews: Hubs can also organize interviews or podcasts with guests that visit the hub regarding a topic that is either interesting for their local community or globally as well.
4. Installers: Installers can post videos on how they installed a home network and server in someone's home. They can then interview the people on how they use it and how they like it. Also, you could explain what happens if something breaks, who to contact what to do etcetera
5. Events: One could make videos of open days of a hub, or donation events or any event ;)
